SPECIAL ANNIVERSARY SECTION

17 TWO HOMES ARE BETTER THAN ONE...

...even if that second escape is quite literally a perch. The Danbury dovecote is a six-sided retreat for feathered guests that's as carefully considered as your primary nest, complete with diminutive shutters, window pediments, and a cute pine-shingled roof crowned by a sculptural finial. Can't you hear the coos already? $405; themine.com.

A table by Courtney Coleman and Bill Brockschmidt from November–December 2016 revels in the occasion.

CELEBRATE THE EVERYDAY

Add the good china and flatware to your regular rotation. A sense of ceremony can make even a modest cup of coffee feel special, and infusing an ordinary breakfast with a bit of elegance is like a gift you can give yourself before you start your day.

19

THE SIMPLEST PLEASURES ARE THE HIGHEST LUXURY

We love our creature comforts as much as anyone, but there's a distinct sense of well-being to be derived from things kept pure and easy. For example: that first bite into an end-of-season tomato plucked straight from the garden and still warm from the sun. There's just no equal.

20

KITCHENS ARE THE HEART—AND SOUL—OF THE HOUSE

Perhaps it's a bit cliché, but it always rings true, at least in our homes. And when a kitchen is anchored by a range worthy of a close-up, crafted by hand and splashed in one of 48 shades—or a custom color—even better! Château 150 range, from $50,000; lacornueusa.com.
